

A few facts about outdoor voters

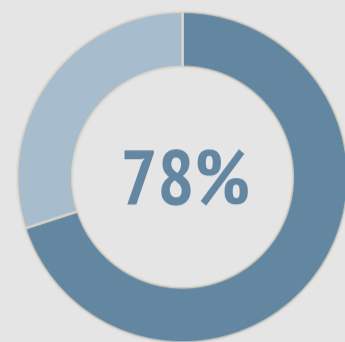

Westerners want elected officials to prioritize the environment, conservation, and climate change.

of Western voters say a candidate's stance on the environment is an important factor in voting decisions.^a of Western voters say they are worried about the future of nature.^a of Western swing state voters say leaders need to do more to support the clean energy industries in their state.^b

Voters favor a variety of proposals to limit the impacts of energy development on public land.

of Western voters would like to stop or limit new drilling on public land.^a of Western swing state voters say oil and gas development on public land should only be allowed with strict limitations.^b of Western voters support requiring companies to pay to clean up oil and gas operations on public land.^a Western voters support proposals that protect and provide funding for public land.

of Western voters support creating new national parks, monuments, wildlife refuges, and tribal protected areas.^a of Western swing state voters support the President using executive authority to designate national monuments.^b of Western swing state voters support investments in infrastructure in national parks and public land made by the Biden administration.^b

REFERENCES

^a. State of the Rockies poll results \(2022\).

^b. Winning the West poll results \(2022\).